This course aims to bring forth the unbreakable -- yet not well-valued and sparsely characterized -- connection between the worlds of text (narrative, poetry, short stories, memoirs, interviews, and film adaptations) to the worlds of medical ailments and medical practice. The course will encourage the reading and interpretation of different literary media coupled with a mirror representation of the disease (s) being discussed throughout the semester. The ultimate goal of the course is to explore fully the connection between health and wellbeing and the power of texts of all kind. Further impact of the recognition and valorization of this prominent literary and medical bond will manifest as participants contribute to knowledge via their participation in adding well-researched content to Wikipedia pages of their choice. Sessions will include active participation between students and faculty, Socratic seminar lead-discussions, written reflections, and review of peer review articles on the subject matter.

Course Goals:

1. An aim of this two-semester course is to improve narrative competency and communication skills, leading to greater comfort deciphering patient stories.

2. Emphasize and improve the students' quality of life and to encourage the practice of self-reflection as well as objective -peer reviewed- writing and research.
3. Increase student's knowledge and understanding of the links between literature and medicine from the perspective of several authors and time periods.
4. Enhance knowledge and comprehension of current debates in the field of literature and medicine;
5. Foster an ability to read and appreciate a selection of literary texts where medical topics are presented, and interpret them against their historical background.
6. Induce an ability to engage in independent research in the field of literature and medicine in order to contribute an objective text to a student selected Wikipedia topic.
7. Develop and overall enhanced self-awareness and reflective capacity, and enhanced skills of critical analysis, argumentation, oral presentation and essay writing.

Course Objectives:

Upon completion of this two-semester course, students will:

- Identify the role of medical literature dealing with certain diseases, recovery or complications in different medical scenarios through human history and diverse cultures by analyzing texts.
- Analyze and interpret global and intercultural issues.
- Explain and link scientific and practical means of the times with their theoretical and cultural background using different forms of literature in non-scientific formats linking the concepts of health, disease, recovery, convalescence and health-care through human kind.
- Critically read and interpret non peer-reviewed material in the topics of medicine, health and healing.
- Develop their interest and skills in communication, research, analysis, synthesis and organization of reflective and descriptive texts.
- Be able to apply their knowledge from previous and current courses to construct reflective and objective comments based on given problems that call for scientific reasoning
- Have developed skills to work collaboratively and in an interdisciplinary manner.
- Develop an awareness of humanistic and distinct set of professional skills required for success as a medical student and emerging doctor.

Format

- Class meets once a week. In general, each meeting is divided into two sessions with a break included, meeting style can vary as there can be a lecture, in-class discussion, in-class note taking, presentations by faculty, students or guest speakers or other presentation format by course director. Any invited guest faculty or peer presenting will be stated in the calendar below and through the course's Blackboard site. There will be opportunities for active learning in related “hot topics” or in the development of learning skills as they relate to art and history of medicine.

- Students will be expected to have read the assigned works before coming to class and be ready and able to participate fully in a discussion—that is, to ask questions as well as posit ideas; to listen and respond to others; and to strive to see that all members of the group contribute equally to the conversation.
- Class will be supplemented by active learning strategies. Faculty will engage students with controversial/ethical discussion topics, case study analysis through class discussion, and out of class assignments.
 - Readings to be assigned by course director or other participating faculty as stated via the calendar or course announcements as needed.
 - Assignments such as conducting a literature search or data search on a research topic and presenting the findings to the class.
- Course work will be posted to the class Blackboard site on a weekly base.

Honors College Requirements

Registration in this course implies an acceptance of and compliance with the Honors College policies for students and the FIU Code of Academic Integrity.

Honors Citizenship Requirements

Beginning in Fall 2014, Honors College students are required to accumulate at least 20 citizenship points each academic year (Fall and Spring) by attending Honors College activities. Students attending only one semester (Fall or Spring) are required to accumulate 10 citizenship points. See <http://honors.fiu.edu/current-students/citizenship/>.

Student Portfolios

The Honors College will be using a portfolio method to assess students' learning outcomes. The portfolio allows for maximum flexibility in gauging student learning. Students decide (with instructor consultation) what "artifacts" or assignments to include for consideration in their portfolios to demonstrate successful achievement of each of five key student-learning outcomes over the 4-year Honors experience. See <http://honors.fiu.edu/current-students/portfolio/>.

Honors College Academic Misconduct Statement

In The Honors College, the term "honor" refers both to academic accomplishment and character. Students in Honors should therefore adhere to and be held to the highest standards of personal academic accountability. Academic dishonesty in any form, including plagiarism, is antithetical to the very definition of being an Honors student at FIU. Consequently, an Honors College student found responsible for academic misconduct will be dismissed from the College.

Procedures and Penalties

An Honors faculty member may bring charges of academic misconduct against an Honors student if the faculty member suspects plagiarism or other forms of academic misconduct. The faculty member will decide whether to pursue informal resolution, file formal resolution charges, or take no further action, and will follow the procedures outlined in the Honors College website (<http://honors.fiu.edu/honors-policies/>), and the Academic Misconduct Procedures, available at <http://integrity.fiu.edu/misconducts.html>.

Please refer to the following documents for additional information:

Religious Observances

Every effort will be made, where feasible and practical, to accommodate students whose religious practices coincide with class requirements or scheduling. Please make sure to notify your instructor at the beginning of the semester of which dates you will be absent or any anticipated problems with completing course work.

Policy for Assigning an “I” Incomplete Grade

An incomplete grade is a temporary symbol given for work not completed because of serious interruption not caused by the student’s own negligence. Please see FIU’s Policy for Assigning an Incomplete Grade.

Physical, Mental and Sensory Challenges

Every effort will be made, where feasible and practical, to accommodate students who are so challenged. Should you require accommodations, contact the Disability Resource Center, if you have not done so already..

Response / Reflection papers (120 points): there will be a total of seven (07) reflection / response papers (RP) that you will be assigned by via Turnit-in links posted to CANVAS. These papers will occur biweekly and will be clearly outlined in the calendar below. All papers would have to do with a topic pertaining to the course during the given week. You will be asked to complete a one page five paragraph reflective essay OR you could be ask to write a similar length document after researching primary literature to bring up more objective data. The latter would be the type of document you will eventually contribute to Wikipedia. You will be provided of the current status of the Wikipedia “stub pages” on the topics selected to see what is already published.

Midterm paper (30 points): (your RP 4) counts for two grades, 20 points as an RP paper and 30 points as your timely midterm assignment.

FINAL ESSAY (RP7) (20 points): This document alongside with you Wikipedia Finalized project constitutes your final course assessments. Be mindful of your deadlines as I will need time to grade and you could save time for other assignments you might have.

Class Participation (15 points): There may be other faculty members participating in this course, and as a result, not only many different teaching styles, but also many ways of assessing your mastery of the material. You are expected to be an active participant in class presentations and discussions in class and on the boards through CANVAS. To participate, you have to be there, so attendance is mandatory. Should something arise, you will be allowed 2 absences. However, please keep in mind that it will only be possible to make up grades for missed presentations, class participation, or for missed quizzes granted by an excused absence and with a reduction in your grade for the specific assignment missed.

ATTENDANCE: Three unexcused absences will result in a decrease of one letter grade. Four or more unexcused absences will result in a course grade of ‘F.’ Please also keep in mind that this course is designed for you—the future health professional. It is important that you maintain the highest ethical conduct and professionalism in your academic and personal life in order to be successful in attaining your future goals. If any problems should arise, please contact Dr. Castellano-Sanchez.

Individual Presentations (25 points): You will be offered a list of topics to present to peers and classmates during the course of the weekly sessions, however students are encouraged to pick topics that they are interested in developing. Topics may include different themes / topics / movements / disciplines / authors suggested to you at the beginning of the semester and pertain to your Wikipedia assignment. You are expected to prepare a presentation that would last 5 min plus 2 min for questions. Faculty and your peers will evaluate your presentation. The grade will be calculated as an average of your faculty’s and peer grading. The rubric is posted under evaluation “forms” in CANVAS.

Weekly quizzes (120 points): will be administered at the beginning of every session through CANVAS to gauge on the assigned weekly reading readings. These short SUMMATIVE assessments will keep faculty and students on task as it related to the content of the material and strengths and deficits of the course. A total of twelve quizzes will be given.

We will be reading together five small novels throughout the semester. The actual progression of each novel is detailed in the course calendar below. All these books were ordered through the Barnes and Noble at FIU bookstore and there are printed copies for loan at the Green library. Every TUESDAY, starting on week II of the semester and ending on week XIV there will be a short quiz that pertains to the material read of the assigned pages of the novel. These twelve (12) small quizzes account for a total of 120 points of your accruing grade.

Wikipedia based training (70 points):

Wikipedia has increasingly become the first resource many internet users consult whenever they encounter an unfamiliar topic. This reliance on Wikipedia is incredibly exciting because it allows for vast amounts of knowledge and information to reach individuals across the globe for free. This reliance on Wikipedia, however, is also equally troubling because of the ever-present dangers of inaccurate, even malicious, information being spread and reinforced through the site.

This semester, you will have the opportunity to play an active role in this social phenomenon by constructing and revising your own Wikipedia entries. We will be work shopping this project throughout 12 weeks of the semester in bits and pieces as part of the online portion of this course. This project will require extensive library research, so please be aware of what this entails. Although the project contributes to thirty four percent (14%) of your final grade, there will be several assignments along the way that form the final grade for the project. All the information for the Wikipedia Project can be found on our courses' homepage. Please bookmark this page on your web browser because we will be referencing the homepage repeatedly throughout the term.

Wikipedia final assignment (100 points): As you pursue the semester you will need to select a topic to work on your final Wikipedia assignment. You will need to provide a copy of the current Wikipedia page (if existing) a rationale as to why you are working that specific topic; the aspects that you are planning to increase, present or work on and what should the end product page look like once you are finished. A PowerPoint and an essay is to be turned in to aim for the total assignment score.

NOTE: There are no make-up exams and/or assignments; there is no grading curve.

Netiquette (<https://cpe.fiu.edu/moocs/policies.php>)

Keep in mind that when communicating through text in an online course, your body language and tone cannot always be taken into account by others. This makes the words you use even more important. While you should feel free to express your ideas as you would in a face-to-face course, the following tips should help you as you communicate inside your course:

DON'T SHOUT! Typing in all caps indicates shouting and might be offensive to others.

Check your writing for grammar and spelling errors. Nobody's perfect, but a good writing style will make a better reflection on you and your ideas. Use general systematic options to check your spelling before sending/posting communication in an online course.

Treat your classmates with respect in terms of their privacy and of their opinions. Ask for clarification if you don't understand what another classmate means or if you feel there might be a conflict.

Keep it polite and maintain all discussions in the context of a classroom where we are all learning from each other in order to help each other achieve a positive and valuable learning experience.

Think before you write. Words live for a long time on the Internet, including to some extent in an online class. While you should feel free to express your opinions and participate in class discussions, it is a good idea to think first about the consequences before posting.

Use proper language and titles. Do not use slang or even profane words in an online education environment, even if they are words you consider, "not so bad," as they may sound offensive to the reader. As a sign of respect you should recognize and refer to your professor as Professor, Instructor, and/or Dr. (if s/he is credentialed as so.)

Be Professional. Leave the characters like smiley faces, and instant message abbreviations out. Your friends may like it, but chances are, your professor will not. Save it for personal conversations or definitely ask for permission before using them. They may be interpreted as childish or too casual for the online education environment. Last, always say please and thank you to demonstrate requests or appreciation versus making statements that might sound like demands as your professor and colleagues are there to facilitate your learning experiences.

Avoid Spam. Any information not related to the course must be approved by the instructor before posting. No advertising, selling or soliciting will be accepted.

Students are prohibited from posting advertisements or commercial solicitations in any area of the course, including on the discussion board or through messages/email, without the express consent of the instructor.
